What We Are

The SCDA promotes the interest of the dairy industry in South Carolina. The Association strives for a spirit of cooperation between members and goodwill among dairy groups and the public. A positive relationship is maintained with the governmental agencies having jurisdiction over the dairy industry and its products. The Association recognizes problems, generates ideas, and educates and informs its membership of pertinent issues in today's industry.

Who We Are

Any persons, firms, or cooperatives engaged in production or manufacture of milk or its products are eligible for membership in the SCDA. The Association also extends membership to those who are involved in the selling of farm and plant supplies.

Membership is set up according to the classification of the group or individual.

What We Do

Annual Convention

The SCDA brings members together for the annual convention in the second quarter of the year. Innovative techniques, popular topics, motivational speakers and important issues are highlighted during the event. Business meetings provide the basis for the planning of new projects and election of new officers.

The annual convention allows members to establish quality professional and personal relationships important to the existence of the industry.

Newsletter

Udderings is the quarterly newsletter sent to members of the SCDA. Informative articles, important dates, and issue updates fill the pages. As the dairy industry advances, it becomes more important to be aware of trends and activities affecting production.

Members are encouraged to contribute to Udderings.

State Association Office

Members are served from a well-equipped, professionally staffed office located in Columbia. Feel free to contact the office at (803) 772-5354.

What We Do

Government Affairs

The Executive Director for the SCDA is a registered lobbyist at the State Capitol. He closely monitors the activities of government at all levels and acts as a spokesman for the Association. Legislative reports are made to keep the members abreast of issues affecting the dairy industry and related business in South Carolina.

Education

To supplement the annual convention, educational seminars are held throughout the year. Instructional speakers devote discussion to dairy innovations. The Association allows members to move forward with a rapidly advancing industry.

Membership Directory

A directory of the current members is published by the Association for distribution to the membership and other interested parties.

Why We're For You

The SCDA has carefully formulated these programs to best meet the needs of the dairy industry and the individuals who support it.

The progress of the industry and the success of those involved in the business are goals the Association works diligently to promote.

All activities are reviewed for effectiveness in reaching established goals. The SCDA is an organization dedicated to YOU, the member.
